Qualitative Entrance and Exit Observation from the First Three Days of Early Voting

Herman for Hamilton

PRICE HILL, OH – Qualitative entrance and exit observation from the first three days of early voting demonstrates strong support for the candidacy of educator and public servant, Dr. Herman J. Najoli. Could this be the year that Hamilton County elects its first non-party independent to ever run for Commissioner? Based on the waves, thumbs-up, and nods received from voters, it seems highly likely that Dr. Najoli’s campaign is paying off, and seismic change is coming to local politics in Hamilton County. Obviously, we cannot count the early voting ballots before they are hatched but there is a very strong showing in favor of the candidacy of Dr. Herman Najoli, a regular citizen who just believed it was time for change and submitted 6,847 signatures for ballot access.

Dr. Najoli’s campaign slogan is ‘move forward, be first, lead’. What is emerging from entrance and exit observation is that voters want to move forward from the rampant political games and backroom business deals. Voters want to elect a servant leader who is all about the purity of public service. Voters want a commissioner who will bring people together, not add to the divisiveness of our political culture. In electing a non-party candidate, Hamilton County will be first in this region to ever achieve this distinction. This seismic change will reawaken spirit and exuberance within the county.

Early voting continues daily at the Hamilton County Ohio Board of Elections. Dr. Najoli can be found there daily except for limited periodic breaks during times when he must address other matters. Reach out to Dr. Najoli at 513-LEADERS.
